Equity & Inclusion at the intersection of identities
Equality

Providing the same access to everyone, regardless of difference and need

Equity

Providing the resources people need to be successful, meeting their different needs
EQUALITY VERSUS EQUITY

In the first image, it is assumed that everyone will benefit from the same supports. They are being treated equally.

In the second image, individuals are given different supports to make it possible for them to have equal access to the game. They are being treated equitably.

In the third image, all three can see the game without any supports or accommodations because the cause of the inequity was addressed. The systemic barrier has been removed.

Diversity

A variety of people from different backgrounds or with different characteristics

Inclusion

Welcoming people with marginalized identities and giving them the resources needed to be successful
Intersectionality

The overlap of different identities that may affect your experience in the world
Intersectionality

rooted in black feminism: argument that white feminism did not address the needs of black women, and anti-racist action focused on the needs of black men exercise: Think of the last 5 books you read. What were the identities of the authors?

What about the star of the last 5 movies you watched?

If these people shared your multiple identities (and are also mainstream), then that is a privilege.
gender, race and/or ethnicity, country of origin, sexual orientation, gender identity, (dis)ability, culture, class, etc.

in groups = dominant culture = more power

out groups = anybody else = less power

“privileged”

“marginalized”
This is not an exhaustive introduction, and I am not an expert.
